"I think a Tulsa Press Club membership is valuable for both professional and social reasons. It is an interesting place to meet people who are committed to Tulsa. I am proud that Tulsa is one of a few cities in America that can brag that the Press Club is alive and well." – Joe Worley, Executive Editor, Tulsa World

"The Tulsa Press Club is a great downtown bargain. The atmosphere is relaxed, the food and drink service friendly, the people who go there interesting. Besides, any organization that does what the Press Club does is worthy of our support." – Clayton Vaughn, former KOTV Anchor.

"I'm a huge fan of the Press Club. It's like Cheers – but in Tulsa and for members only. Over the years, I have gained some very valuable relationships through my involvement. I've also enjoyed being able to take on a leadership role through volunteering to put on an event. As a young professional, that has been valuable to me in tuning my leadership skills." – Andrea Myers, Rex Public Relations
